Day 1 : Canterbury

Day 1

- Medieval town
- Pilgrimage Site
- University Town
- South-East of London
- Saint-Augustin cathedral - 1170

Day 1 : presented by Constantin Hatton, 4e4

In the bus, everybody was excited, some children were singing, others were listening to music. We ate outside, and we had 30 minutes to relax. 4 hours later, we were visiting Canterbury, which is a modern and religious town. It is a pilgrimage site and it has 3 universities.

We saw Marlowe's theatre and its original artwork. In the streets of Canterbury, the houses are the same, but just the colours of their doors are different.

Orlando Bloom was born in Canterbury and he had started playing in Marlowe's theatre.

In the centre, we saw many statues of important personalities, like William the Conqueror. We saw the Gothic Cathedral of Canterbury, which is one of the most famous and ancient Christian churches in England, however, be careful, because the legend says that a witch lived in Canterbury.

During the free time, my group ate a snack and bought some souvenirs for the families.

For me, the first day was great and I hoped the two next ones would be as great as the first one.

Day 2 : London

Day 2 :

- London Eye and the 4D experience
- Westminster, neo-gothic
- Churchill, Gandhi, Mandela
- Robert Peel = « bobbies » (police officier)
- Camden
- Changing of the Guards
- Big-Ben

Day 2 : presented by Ludwin Merion, 4e4

There were parades around the Buckingham palace, to celebrate the monarch's birthday. One King had his birthday in November, but it was always raining, so he decided that the parades would happen in June, no matter when the real birthday of the Queen or the King was. The Changing of the Guards started at around 12h30.

When we arrived, we saw Westminster Abbey, and the park next to it. There were the statues of important people in the world, like Nelson Mandela, or Ghandi. There was also a statue of Robert Peel, the creator of the first police brigade. The police officers are called « bobbies », and it comes from « Robert ».

Then, we went to Camden, where there are a lot of shops and a lot of restaurants.

Finally, we took a ride in the London Eye, it was really high and we could see all of London : the view from the top was amazing.

My favourite activity on this day was the London Eye, because it was special and unique.

Day 3 : London

Day 3 :

- St Paul's Cathedral : Wedding of Lady Diana and the Prince Charles
- The Tower of London where Ravens guard the Crown Jewels
- The Globe Theatre : it was built by Shakespeare's company in 1599

Day 3 : presented by Mathéo Chapon, 4e4

Like everybody, we left Paddock Wood at 8am and 2 hours later (yeah, that was really long) we finally arrived to the City. It is an important neighbourhood. It has got its own mayor and the Queen has to send a request to go inside. We walked around the St Paul's Cathedral and we took the Millennium Bridge to go to the Globe Theatre. It was Shakespeare's theatre but it burnt down in 1666, and it was rebuilt with the help of many donors. The cheapest places were in the pit and the rich people were sitting behind the stage.

We ate and walked to the Tower of London, by taking the Tower Bridge. There were a lot of ravens in the castle because there is a legend about them : if the ravens fly away, the monarchy will fall, so they cut the end of their wings. We saw the Crown Jewels, the level of security is very high. The Koh-i-Noor diamond is the biggest jewel, it is very impressive. Before leaving the Tower of London, we visited the White Tower : there were lots of armours there.

Day 4 : Brighton

Day 4 :

- The Royal Pavillion is situated in Brighton. Brighton is located in the south-east of Englan
- d.
- It was built in the 19th Century for the king George IV
- George IV was the first who visited The Royal Pavillion in 1783.
- After his death, William IV lived here.
- The Queen Victoria disliked Brighton because the lack of privacy at the Pavillion. Brighton became accessible to Londoners by rail in 1841

Day 4 : presented by Elise di Crescenzo, 4e4

For the last day we went to Brighton and we left at 1pm directly to France.

First, we visited The Royal Pavilion. In the Royal Pavilion there are beautiful rooms like the kitchen, bedrooms, living rooms and the music room. On the ceiling of the music room there were 10,000 scales covered in gold. There was the bedroom of the king's brother, yellow, and this color was reserved for rich people. The style of the Royal Pavilion is Indian and the interior is Chinese.

Second we had free time for shopping during an hour and a half. Brighton is a big town that we liked. People are nice and the weather was beautiful. After that we took the coach directly to France. We took the shuttle and we arrived in Meudon at 11 pm.

Finally, this trip was amazing and a beautiful experience.
